New Caripito terminal inaugurated

Public Services Congress Installed in Monagas and Anzoátegui

The sectoral vice-president of Public Works and Services, Néstor Luis Reverol, together with its cabinet, arrived in the Monagas region to inaugurate the "José Enrique Caspar" Eastern Intermodal Terminal in Caripito. In addition, the visit was propitious to install the National Congress of Public Services in the state.

The also Minister of Electric Power accompanied by the Governor of Monagas, Ernesto Luna and other directors, reported that this Terminal will serve up to 3,000 users per day and will generate 830 direct and indirect jobs.

"Today we are going to inaugurate an Intermodal Terminal in Caripito that will connect several states of the country with the state of Monagas, also benefiting the states of Sucre, Delta Amacuro, Bolívar and Anzoátegui," he said.

He added that from Caripito the service will be extended to the other municipalities of the state and also to other eastern cities, such as Carúpano, Cumaná, Güiría, Casanay and Cariaco, in Sucre, among the closest cities.

"Likewise, it will serve users who need to travel to and from San Félix, Puerto Ordaz, Upata, Tumeremo and Santa Elena, in Bolívar state; as well as El Tigre, Anaco, San Tomé, Urica, Santa Rosa and San Mateo de Anzoátegui. We will also have departures to Tucupita, in Delta Amacuro", he explained.

250 Recycling and Cleaning Technical Tables were formed

Reverol pointed out that once the technical tables were installed in the areas of electricity, drinking water, domestic gas, solid waste collection, telecommunications, transportation and roads; A map of public services will be drawn up prioritizing problems and solutions.

"We have brought a set of projects and solutions to the people of Monagas in order to seek stability and maintenance of public services", he said.

He explained that 250 Recycling and Cleaning Technical Tables (METRAS) are being formed to continue activating the social fabric that allows empowerment around environmental issues and garbage collection.

The Anzoátegui Chapter Installed

This Friday, the institutions that make up the Sectoral Vice Presidency of Public Works and Services, moved to Anzoátegui state to install the National Congress of Services.

The activity was led by the vice president of the Executive Branch, G/J Néstor Reverol, who is also Minister of Electric Power, together with the entity's governor, Luis José Marcano, and the deputy of the National Assembly (AN), William Gil, at the head of the Permanent Commission of Administration and Services.

Reverol explained that together with the Popular Power, the map of solutions was designed for the optimization of services in the region.

"We estimate that in a short time, with projects that President Nicolás Maduro has called ABC, with high impact, low cost and short time, we will have 100% of the public services of that showcase, as a mirror of the Anzoátegui state," he said,

Ecosocialist Actions

The Minister for Ecosocialism, Josué Lorca, indicated that all the teams of the institutions formed four working tables with the Popular Power in the areas of: Citizen Participation; Scientific and Technical Development; Management Model and Local Experiences.

Min. Lorca participated in the activation of 12 METRAS referring to a sample of the social cartography made by the Popular Power.

Among what he described as early victories, the vice president stated that 40 transformers were delivered, in addition to the 110 granted and 70,000 thousand Led bulbs were assigned to organized communities. Another electrical improvement is the authorization of 40 more megawatts in the Thermoelectric Plant in Guanta.

Regarding the water supply, 38 solutions were decided, including the delivery of 40 motors and pumps for the rehabilitation of deep wells, in addition to the activation of the Caratal canal, which increases the flow to 1,060 liters of water per second.

Lorca pointed out that the actions of the Congress are carried out "in order to create the agenda for concrete action and the map of problems, thus guaranteeing the best functioning of all public services".

Likewise, within the framework of the installation of the public services congress in Anzoátegui, Minister Lorca inspected the recovery work being carried out at the Cerro de Piedra landfill in the Simón Bolívar municipality of the aforementioned entity. In this same order, Lorca participated in the activation in this municipality of 12 Recycling and Cleaning Technical Tables (METRAS) and the constitution of 3 Brigades Against Climate Change.

Likewise, together with the mayor of the Sotillo municipality, Nelson Moreno, Lorca delivered a supply of bicycles to the municipal tourist police and inspected the sanitation work on the El Espigón dock as well as the maintenance work on the Pozuelos Bridge drains in the city of Puerto La Cruz.

Two camels arrived at the Caricuao Zoo

As a result of an agreement, this Saturday two camels arrived in the country, which were immediately taken to the Caricuao Zoological Park, where they will comply with the rigorous quarantine and then will be on display.

At the reception of the animals was the Minister of People's Power for Ecosocialism, Josué Lorca, who pointed out that they received the two animals from Spain "in an agreement with an important zoo in that country, to join the list of animals that we have received this year.

The two camels arrived as part of a cooperation agreement with Spain

"For us it is very important because it allows us to strengthen the entire collection of our zoos, in compliance with the instructions of President Nicolás Maduro Moros, who indicated the strengthening of the zoos," he said.

He informed "the entire population of Caracas and the Venezuelans who come to enjoy Safe Holy Week in Caracas, that they can go to the Caricuao Zoo because from this moment on we are putting our white lioness on display".

"We have two lions here, but also, more than 60 days ago, a white lioness had arrived from the Czech Republic, ready for exhibition", he explained.

He added that they have a surprise for "Caraqueños, animalists, lovers of life and eco-socialist management: we have decided to change the name of El Pinar, which served as a zoo".

"We moved the 141 species that it housed, we distributed them throughout the country, to places where they were in better conditions. We began the transformation of El Pinar into a rescue center for wild and domestic fauna", he stated.

For her part, the president of the Snowy Mission, Maigualida Vargas, stated that she is accompanying Minister Lorca for the announcement of the transformation of the old El Pinar Zoo into a wildlife rehabilitation and rescue center, which will also be a place of recovery and adaptation of domestic animals.

"The spaces are adapted and opened so that we can continue working on our Fifth Objective of the Plan of the Homeland, of the preservation of life on the planet," she assured.

She maintained that the "space will be for the recovery of animals and give them an opportunity to have a family".

"Very soon, families from Caracas will be able to go to El Pinar to make adoptions. We are very happy to be part of this process of a policy of love, preservation, ecosocialist, with respect for life and the planet", she affirmed.

Vargas said that "for us this new site is excellent news for the city and we are proud to be able to accompany and be part of the management of the Ministry for Ecosocialism".

To protect the environmental

The Public Ministry Consigned to the Courts a Precautionary Order for the Waraira Repano National Park

The Attorney General of the Republic, Tarek William Saab, reported that the Public Ministry (MP) through the Environment Directorate, filed before the corresponding Courts, an environmental precautionary measure for the Waraira Repano National Park.

The information was released by the Attorney General of the Republic through his account on the social network Twitter @Ta-rekWilliamSaab, in which he indicated that said measure is made for the purpose of incorporating the security forces, as well as the organs and corresponding entities in the protection of the National Park, and thus avoid forest fires, such as the one that happened this weekend.

On Monday, the Ministry of the Popular Power for Ecosocialism (Minec), prepared a document in which the MP was asked to issue a precautionary measure for the Waraira Repano, which restricts, restricts entry, circulation and overnight stays in the middle and upper areas of the park, which exceed the Park Ranger Posts, with the exceptions corresponding to the road accesses of the towns located within the Park, the Los Venados Administrative Center and the Warairo Repano Cable Car System.

Last Sunday, a forest fire was registered in the Elephant Head sector of the Waraira Repano

National Park, which was controlled by members of the Forest Firefighters, Civil Protection (PC), Bolivarian National Armed Forces (FANB), as well as park rangers and volunteers.

Given this, the Sectoral Vice President for Citizen Security and Peace, A/J Remigio Ceballos, stressed that the National Government is working on strengthening the Control and Monitoring System of the Waraira Repano National Park, located in Caracas.

"President Nicolás Maduro has given us a plan to strengthen control and monitoring of the park. New equipment was donated today to strengthen the actions of our officials," Ceballos said during a phone call to the Venezolana de Televisión (VTV) channel.

In addition, he indicated that they will incorporate the use of autonomous vehicles, as well as security cameras in order to prevent and recognize this type of event in time.

Presidential Commission on Chemical Safety in Extraordinary Session Raised the Action Plan 2022

The Presidential Commission on Chemical Safety (CPSQ), held an extraordinary session at the Central Headquarters of the Ministry of the Popular Power for Ecosocialism (Minec), with the aim of reviewing the proposals for the organization's program of activities for this year 2022.

The Vice Minister of Waste Management of Minec, Dennys Guédez, assured "this meeting responds to instructions from our president Nicolás Maduro Moros and our Minister of the Popular Power for Ecosocialism, Josué Lorca".

Guédez stressed that the meeting is an initiative that brings together different actors from the public and private sectors, within the framework of the co-responsibility of the nation in the environmental field.

The General Director of Environmental Quality Management of Minec, Luis Palacios, indicated "it was a very interesting meeting, whose objective is to form the strategic commissions that will evaluate each one of the processes and policies for the management of chemical substances at the national level".

He added that "we will also take care of expanding the labeling standards that guarantee the health of our communities, that give a better quality of life to the population and the comprehensive protection of all ecosystem processes in the country".

For her part, the line director of the Directorate of Substances, Materials and Hazardous Waste of Minec, Laya Flores, stated that "we are reactivating all the subcommittees that carry out the activities outlined, to monitor the handling of substances chemicals and hazardous waste".

He added that "another objective of this meeting is to consolidate commitments and strengthen the spirit of work to obtain results".

Laya emphasized the need to establish a final disposal for mercury, which enters the country in large quantities. In turn, he stressed that the Petrochemical Company of Venezuela (Pequiven), delivered a project on this subject.

Training cycle

Minec Screened the Documentary "The Rich, the Poor and the Garbage"

The General Directorate of Training of the Ministry of the Popular Power for Ecosocialism (Minec), screened this Tuesday, the documentary "The rich, the poor and the garbage", as part of the cycle of film forums called "Climate change, people, planet and life".

The piece, created by Naomi Phillips and Thomas Hasel for the German television station Deutsche Welle (DW), shows a problem of the time: garbage and what we do with it says a lot about the way we consume, well-being and social inequalities.

The audiovisual, which was exhibited at the Waraira Repano Hall located on the sixth floor of the Minec headquarters, in the South Tower of El

REFLECTIONS ON ECOSOCIALISM

Water, a Future Conflict

Por Josué Alejandro Lorca Vega

The main reason for war has always revolved around territorial expansion and occupation for the appropriation of its resources; from the end of the 19th century with the manufacture of the first diesel internal combustion engines, the era of hydrocarbons began that would cover the entire last century; but especially, after the second postwar period (1945), the oil business would be placed as the main objective of global geo-strategic control by the "triumphant" North American power, and its military industry. However, this perspective has been "altering" in recent decades.

The former vice president of the World Bank, Ismail Serageldin, predicted in 1995 that "the wars of the next century will be over water", this vision today seems not to be very far from reality, if we take into account the factual consequences of the climate crisis that we live in today. The various circumstances of water scarcity on the planet pose serious threats to world peace, since both the supply and the renewal of the vital liquid in the world are experiencing more and more due to of its privatization as it happened in Bolivia towards the year 2003.

According to data from the United Nations Organization (UN): 2,200 million people lack access to safely managed drinking water services. (WHO/UNICEF

2019); Nearly 2 billion people depend on health care facilities that lack basic water services (WHO/UNICEF

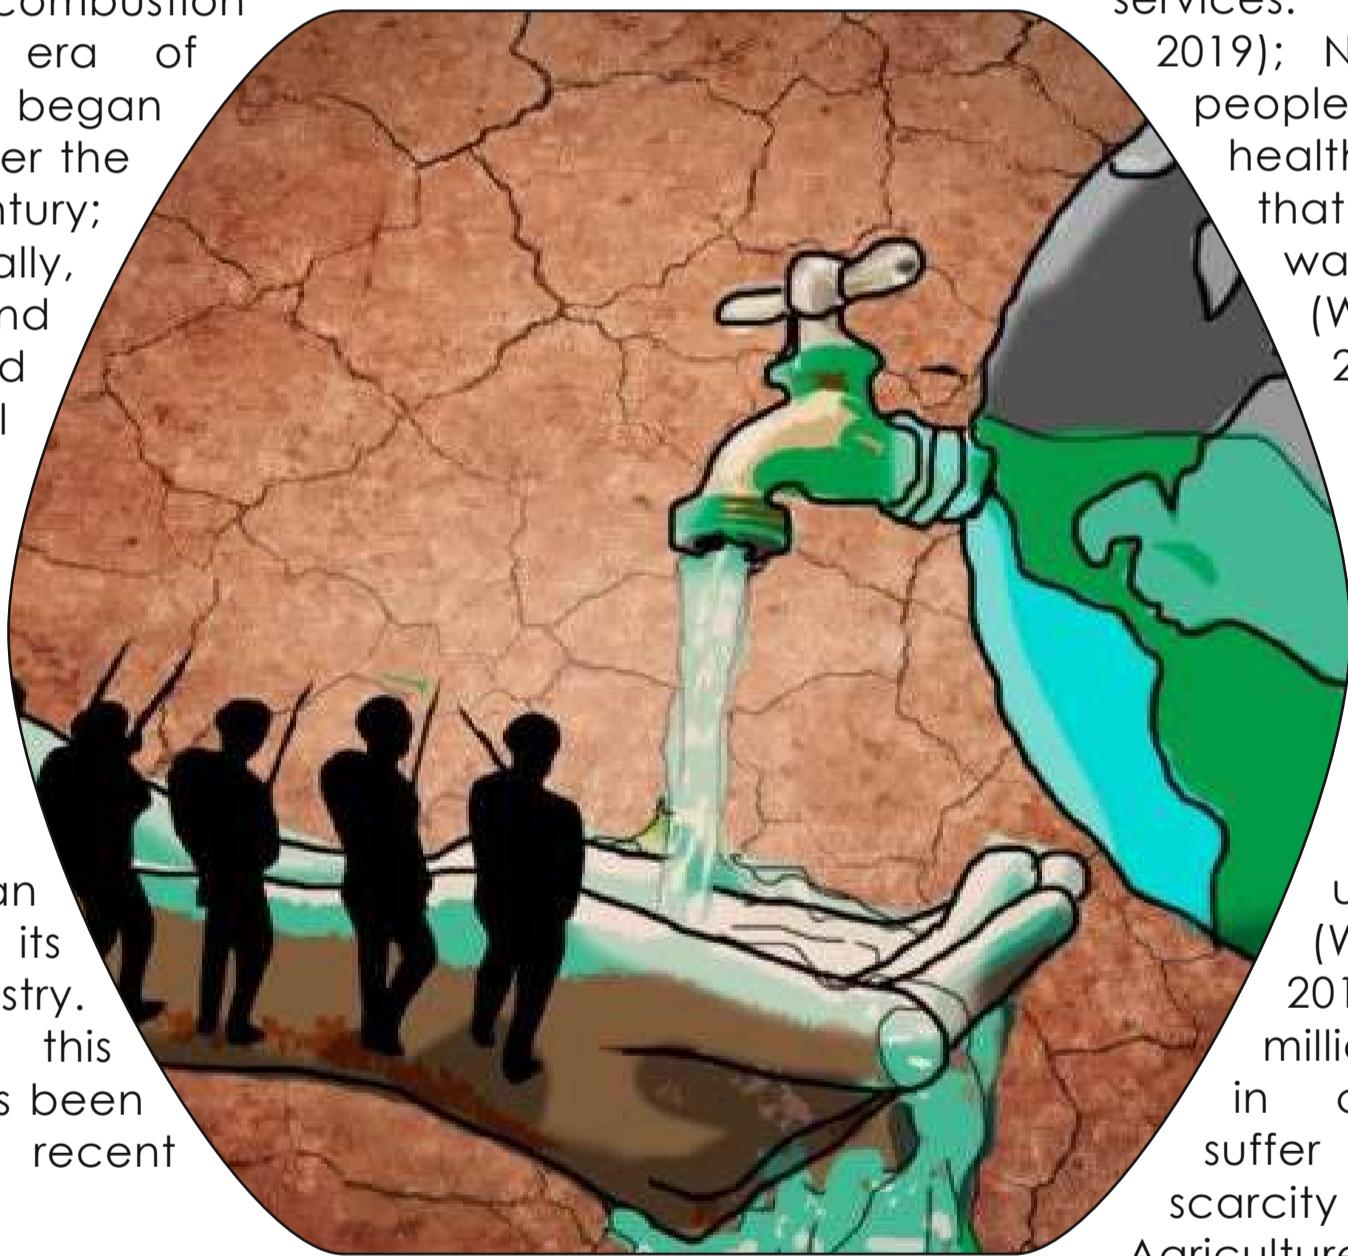

2020); 297,000 children under the age of five die each year due to diarrheal diseases caused by poor sanitation or unsafe water (WHO/UNICEF

2019); 2,000 million people live in countries that suffer from water scarcity (UN 2019); Agriculture accounts for 70% of the world's water extraction (FAO).

Faced with such a dramatic global scenario, a product of the climate crisis, the possibilities of international conflicts with causal axes in the need and interests of difficulties. In such a way that access to this fundamental element for life has become a source of power or, on the contrary, a threat of dispute that could generate serious conflicts between nations, as well as strong social unrest, territorially preserving the reservoir of the vital liquid increase.

Our Republic as a territory of peace, guarantor of human rights in terms of the water treaty for the Venezuelan population, is an example for a good percentage of countries in the international arena, since the care of ecosystems, rivers, and large reservoirs of fresh water, as well as the afforestation and planting of new forests, are a rigorous State policy; It is also included in the program of the National Government.

But, above all, we must work on the awareness of our citizens in their care and consumption, for what environmental problems that affect high basins such as deforestation, logging, burning, earthworks, livestock, constructions without technical criteria, diversion and illegal use of water courses, forest fires (especially this last problem that I mention that from 2015 to the present day there have been more than 9700 forest fires) we can reverse them, because water is ultimately, the constituent foundation for life human and non-human.

In our country we have a reforestation plan inserted in the Plan de Patria 2019-2025 , which in addition to being the government program for the six-year term is a Law, for the year 2022-2023 the goal is to plant 10,000,000 trees, protecting from the 81 hydrographic basins that our nation possesses, the 16 main basins linked to 19 states to 122 municipalities that at their point and circle house 15,631 communal councils, 631 communes, associated with the national system of parks and natural monuments with the largest water reserves and biological diversity in the national territory.

These 16 basins have (11) reservoirs for the generation of 70% of hydroelectric energy, 48 reservoirs that generate 60% of water for human consumption, and integrate the main sources of water for the irrigation system of agricultural activity, of in such a way that "We will Preserve Life " as proposed by our 5th Historical Objective.

"If each one of us sows a tree, we will be sowing water, we will be sowing life ".
