WHY ECOSOCIALISM?

Guardians of the tree and Little Park Rangers participated in the inauguration

As part of the Love in Action Plan for the Victims of the Economic Blockade, the Vice President of the Republic, Delcy Rodríguez, inaugurated last Tuesday, the G/J Luis García Carneiro Socialist Missions Base, in the Macuto sector of La Guaira state.

Rodríguez recalled that "today marks 20 years since the fateful day that fascism tried to erase the Revolution and remove Comandante Chávez from power; but as the Comandante said: "every 11 has its 13 and we are permanently 13, because the people What he wants is to live in a democracy".

He commented that after two decades of those events, the saga of the former Guaireño president, Jorge Luis García Carneiro, is remembered with patriotic love by the inhabitants of the entity and highlighted Carneiro's first-person defense of President Chávez, the Revolution and the town in those days of April 2002.

He stressed that social cartography is the compass of the Government's management, for which the President of the Republic, Nicolás Maduro, has presented the country with the 1 x 10, so that it is the organized people who diagnose and report their problems to direct solutions.

The Vice President shared with spokespersons for Popular Power present at the new Missions Base, which serves three neighboring communities for 1,500 families representing more than 4,000 people and with daily care for 200 people.

In this sense, community representatives stated that the mission base will serve three communities in a point and a circle. Therefore, the national government, together with the regional government and the Popular Power, have focused on solving the different problems that these communities present, in search of improving their quality of life.

The community representatives explained that La Guaira is a 100% Communal territory, which to date has 54 organized communes that have developed projects through Social Mapping and Community Governments.

The act was attended by the Governor of La Guaira, José Alejandro Terán, the Minister of Popular Power for Youth and Sports, Mervin Maldonado, the director of the Ecosocialist Territorial Unit (UTEC) La Guaira, of the Ministry of Popular Power for Ecosocialism (Minec), Edison Adrián Mayora, a group of Tree Guardians, Little Park Rangers and the Tree Mission Foundation, led by its president Wilmer Vásquez.

Adrián Mayora, at the ecosocialist point of the exhibition, commented on the plants typical of the coast, such as the sea grape, emblematic of the region, which is under protection and announced the existence of 10 community nurseries in the entity.

In this regard, the president of the Tree Mission, Wilmer Vásquez, indicated that the Mission he directs is for children and young people, as President Nicolás Maduro pointed out.

"Thanks to the indications of the President, the Guardians of the Tree movement was born and in this act, in addition, there is a representation of the eco-brigades of the community," said Vásquez.

to show that they are up for the fight and that this overflow of the people and streets in Caracas, It is one more sample for the world and those who do not love us".

"To the empire, make no mistake, because just as 20 years ago every 11 had its 13, each blockade has the Venezuelan people sown, knee on the ground, overcoming every adversity that arises," he specified.

He added that "just as our father Simón Bolívar is the man of adversity, this people has risen up showing that just as we defeated a coup 20 years ago, we continue to win and there is still a lot of revolution for the years to come."

"To the right I send a message to join the work, abandon that path of violence, of destruction that has brought so much damage and suffering to our people," he said.

He argued that "we are going to move forward and just as our Commander Chavez took that step forward 20 years ago with a sign of forgiveness, we can build a possible Venezuela."

"President Maduro has followed that legacy and we as a people tell all those who are against it to see this people, this is the Bolivarian Revolution and it is what the Venezuelan people want," he concluded.

Minec analyzes protective measures for the Bocaina de Patanemo Lagoon

In order to study the establishment of environmental protection measures, the Popular Power Minister for Ecosocialism, Josué Lorca, carried out an inspection of the Bocaina Lagoon in Patanemo, located in the town of Puerto Cabello, Carabobo state.

The tour of the site, which is located within the San Esteban National Park, was carried out due to the fact that 4 x 4 vehicles enter the area, causing severe and extensive damage to the natural relief during their movements.

The lagoon, with a large number of mangroves, serves as a refuge for a considerable diversity of birds, among which are the flamingos. Also,

Extended period of public consultation for the regulation of use of two forest reserves and the Forest Law

The Ministry of Popular Power for Ecosocialism (Minec), announced that it extended for one more month the public consultation for the elaboration of the decrees of the Plans of Order and Regulation of Use of the Caparo Forest Reserves, in the state of Barinas and the Tocuyo River, included in the entities of Yaracuy and Falcón, in addition to the normative project of the Forest Law.

The legal instruments submitted for consultation are due to compliance with the Organic Law for Land Management, and to fulfill the purposes for which the Areas Under Special Administration Regime (Abrae) are declared, among which are the forest reserves.

The aforementioned forest reserves require the preparation of a management plan and a use regulation, through which the guidelines, directives and policies for their administration are established, as well as the orientation for the assignment of permitted uses and activities.

As for the regulations of the Forest Law, this aims to develop the precepts on protection, conservation, access, use and sustainable management of the forest heritage contained in the Forest Law.

The consultation was opened on February 11 and will continue until May 11, during which time they will be able to access the Minec website <http://www.minec.gob.ve/> , download the

After months of hard work

Minister Lorca announced the eradication of the Xenia SP coral from Patanemo Bay

Eradication actions will continue in the Mochima National Park

The Popular Power Minister for Ecosocialism, Josué Lorca, announced last Sunday, April 10, that after several weeks of work, the invasive coral Xenia SP was eradicated from Patanemo Bay in the town of Puerto Cabello, Carabobo state.

Lorca indicated that the new condition of the bay is the product of the extraction actions since September 18, 2021, World Day of the Seas and Beaches "when we started a fairly ambitious job that was to place an experimental plot for the sanitation of the invasive coral".

"We want to announce that we have cleaned up this bay, through eight continuous weeks of work with the organized Popular Power, the fishermen who provided a lot of support and thanks to the National Institute of Aquatic Spaces (INEA), which helped with the filling of the tanks for the dives," he said.

He thanked the participation of the Pílares Marinos Foundation, "which together with the Ministry for Ecosocialism (Minec), was in charge of the project from September to February in the rigorous tasks: sinking, extraction, placement and eradication."

"Today we can say that from Patanemo Bay, in 620 square meters, we have removed 18 tons of coral and we have a healthy bay. We prepared a report together with the University of Carabobo (UC), to present it to the different Universities", he stated.

He added that he invites "all of Venezuela, to universities and scientific institutes, to join our efforts to clean up Venezuelan bays".

Xenia SP coral in Aragua, Boca seca. Also, we have the invasive coral in a very significant way in the Mochima National Park, on the coasts of the Sucre and Anzoátegui states", he specified.

He maintained that from this moment the cleaning maneuvers are moved to specific areas of Mochima: Bahía El Saco, Chimana Norte and Sur and Arapo Island, "where the new eradication plots will be placed".

"This coral, unknown to many, which has been known in recent months, comes from the Asian continent and has been present in Venezuela for approximately 17 years, when the first records of its appearance were made", he commented.

He commented that the Xenia SP is "invasive because it colonizes all the native coral reefs, suffocating them little by little. It is stinging to humans, as we saw in tests with divers while it was being mined. Likewise, it is stinging for all species that can get close to it".

"It means that all those schools of fish that are around the coral move away and at the same time do so from the fishing population, which directly affects the economy of human beings, who no longer have schools of fish nearby," he pointed out.

For this reason, Minister Lorca highlighted the importance of coral eradication at the national level to guarantee clean seas and beaches.

REFLECTIONS ON ECOSOCIALISM

WHY ECOSOCIALISM?

By Josué Alejandro Lorca Vega

The planetary ecological crisis continues its accelerated deepening while continuing to endanger the balance of life and the survival of the human species. The climate crisis, the systemic crisis is the total crisis of the capitalist model, since it is based on a logic that by necessity is expansive and predatory of nature, resources and people, this is expressed in a life project that it makes the means of life for some, the means of death for others; Consequently, it is not a project valid for everyone, even if it is done on behalf of everyone.

Unfortunately, many efforts to seek concrete solutions to the global environmental crisis tend to be frustrated not only by the rejection of the powerful, but also by the lack of interest of some sectors of society.

The attitudes that obstruct the solution paths, still, go from the denial of the problem to the indifference, the comfortable resignation or the blind trust in the technical solutions. A new universal solidarity is necessary, from a holistic and integrating vision of reality, and the will of a totally different relationship of human societies not with nature, but within nature.

Faced with this, in the last half century several transformation alternatives have emerged in the capitalist model, it demands much more from us, an internal revolution of our conceptions, of our mentality, of our relationships. It guides us to try to be more, not to have more. It seeks to develop joint actions hand in hand with the people, which help to reduce the effects of the climate crisis, promoting a supportive and ecological production model, based on the harmonious relationship between human beings and nature, thus guaranteeing respectful use and exploitation. sustainability of natural resources.

While it is true that ecosocialism is a proposal for life under construction, which is calling for a worldwide effort to contain and reverse the effects of the capitalist model, we also affirm that ecosocialism is being strengthened by executing countless initiatives of different cognitive orders, which are found, searched for and integrated at different levels and that characterize it as an eminently pedagogical fact.

In the words of Andrés Barrantes "Ecosocialism is the articulation of radical ecology and the field of political ecology to challenge Capitalism from different ethical, ecological, social, economic considerations, one of them, Ecosocialism.

Ecosocialism does not pretend to have a monopoly on the alternative to the prevail-revolutionary socialism, it is opposed to capitalism and productivism. It must be at the same time scientific and militant". James O'Connor defines it as "the theory that attempts to subordinate certification, the recovery of our hydrographic basins, wetlands and the transformation of urban spaces into bio-healthy spaces.

This new model requires a leading role for men and women, therefore, it requires a qualitative leap towards a new paradigm, from the dialectical method, incorporating nature into the community and vice versa, where popular knowledge, art and spirituality are also incorporated; where ancient agriculture, the indigenous worldview, and peasant knowledge are also taken up again. We must get out of historical conditioning, including in our perspective a future that is worthy, humane, harmonious, supportive and respectful of diversity.

exchange value to use value". In turn, Joel Kovel and Michael Lowy affirm that "ecosocialism is a political current founded on a fundamental observation: safeguarding the ecological balance of the planet; the protection of an environment favorable to living species (including ours), being incompatible with the expansive and destructive logic of the capitalist system". For Comandante Chávez "Ecosocialism has to do above all with the ecological issue, but it is much more than ecological, it is political, it is ethical and it must contribute to the salvation of life on this planet and the survival of the human species. on Earth that is being threatened precisely by the destructive system of capitalism" necessary revolutionary praxis to achieve its goals. . In an Ecosocialist society there should be no dichotomy between human beings and nature, nor can there be phenomena such as exclusion, domination or poverty.

Ecosocialism consists of working tirelessly for the rights of mother earth, manifested in concrete actions associated with the protection of biological diversity, living well, environmental awareness and training at all levels of the Bolivarian Educational System, comprehensive management and protection of our Natural Protected Areas, the fight against climate change, de-

In this sense, we need a conversion that unites us, because the environmental challenges we are experiencing, and its human roots, are of interest to all of us.

Ecosocialism is poetry, it is song, it is future, it is hope, it is the tender look of a boy or girl knowing that they will have a planet where they can develop as a species, ecosocialism is above all things, life, it is spirituality, it is Peace.

Ecosocialism represents a political system that articulates the good management of ecosystems and a co-management of equitable and harmonious society, it should not be content with beautiful ideas, good intentions and pleas, but must assume a
